SECTION-A(READING)

Q.1 Read the following comprehension carefully and answer the following questions:

As you know, plants have four important parts. They have roots, stems, leaves and flowers. We also know that many plants give us food to eat. Have you ever thought about the part of the plant you are eating?

We actually eat the root, stem, leaf or flower of a plant, depending on its type. For example, we are eating roots when we eat the part of the plant that grows in the ground. Some edible roots are sweet potato, radish and carrot. We eat the plant stem of sugarcane. Lettuce and spinach are all leafy vegetables. Some vegetables we eat are actually the flower parts of the plant. For example when we eat broccoli, we can eat both the stem and flower but usually we like the flower part more. The food we get from plants is always a healthy choice, whether it is the root, stem, leaf or flower.
